Responsibility for Correctness and Completeness of Information:

Please be aware that for any application, proposal, instruction, order, or related contractual documentation submitted to a product supplier—whether by you or on your behalf—for the purchase or investment in a financial product (including any amendments or variations), it is your responsibility to ensure that all material facts are accurately and fully disclosed. If another person assists you in completing or submitting such documents, you must take reasonable steps to confirm the accuracy and completeness of all details provided. You remain fully responsible for the correctness of all answers, statements, and supporting information, regardless of who prepares or submits the documentation on your behalf. Please note that any misrepresentation, omission, or non-disclosure of material information may result in adverse consequences, including but not limited to: 1. The rejection or cancellation of the transaction; 2. The forfeiture or non-payment of benefits by the product supplier; 3. Legal or regulatory implications depending on the nature and extent of the misrepresentation. We strongly recommend that you review all submitted information carefully before submission to avoid any unintended outcomes.

Signing of Incomplete Documents:

You are hereby advised and cautioned that no individual acting on behalf of the Financial Services Provider (FSP) may, in the course of providing financial services, request or require you to sign any form or document—whether written or printed—before all relevant sections have been properly and fully completed. To protect your interests, always ensure that all information is clearly filled in and understood before affixing your signature. This is in line with fair business practices and regulatory compliance requirements. However, the FSP makes use of electronic acceptance for its Terms and Conditions. By clicking the acceptance button, you are deemed to have provided your electronic signature, thereby legally agreeing to the contents of the document.

Waiver of Rights:

No person may request, persuade, or offer any inducement for you to waive any right or benefit afforded to you under the provisions of the General Code of Conduct issued in terms of the Financial Advisory and Intermediary Services (FAIS) Act. Your rights are legally protected, and any attempt to undermine them is not permitted. A copy of the General Code of Conduct is available upon request, should you wish to review your entitlements and protections.

Rendering of Advice:

Please note that the representative is strictly prohibited from providing any form of financial advice. They are solely authorised to render intermediary services, which include facilitating administrative processes—without offering any recommendations or guidance on financial products.

Warning against Impersonating:

While the representative takes every possible measure to prevent impersonation, it is ultimately your responsibility to verify that you are engaging with the correct individual. We strongly encourage you to confirm the representative's identity by contacting us directly using the official contact details provided. If you suspect any instance of impersonation or receive suspicious communication, please report it to us immediately so we can take the necessary action.

Banking Details:

The Financial Services Provider (FSP) will never disclose its banking details through any public forum or via any unofficial communication channels. Banking information will only be shared through the secure, dedicated method implemented within our official application. This measure is in place to protect clients against fraud, phishing and impersonation. If you ever receive banking details through any other means, please treat it as suspicious and report it to us immediately. Always ensure that you are using the official application or contacting us directly through verified channels when transacting or requesting sensitive information.
